Highlight(s):

- In their quality and presentation, these assignments are a credit to the centre's trainers, guidance and support. The candidates work in a wide range of contexts, but they are developing shared values as practitioners through the centre's programme.
- All the assignments are professionally presented, and content is complete and relevant.
- Part A section responses were completed concisely – much appreciated in that the evidence was to the point and did not exceed word limits, thus keeping the communication from candidate to examiner effective and economical.
- All candidates attempted to address the themes in Part B and produced interesting and authentic insights.
- All candidates clearly are engaging in understanding learning as well as understanding teaching.
